

Join the Tenakee Library in a Tenakee community-wide journey to educate ourselves and gain historical and social sensitivity to some of today's American issues: take the racial justice challenge.

With events of this year, if you have felt that you would like to learn, listen, share, and take action regarding race, racism, and antiracism, then you might be interested in joining us in a Racial Justice Challenge. This program was organized by people at University of Maine and we learned of it through the Alaska State Library. As members of the Dermott O'Toole Memorial Library Board, we participated in the national activity. We were so excited by what we learned, the library is offering it to the community of Tenakee. It is a five part activity that we will address in two week increments. Use of computer/internet and some Zoom meetings will be required. The program will start October 1 and end December 15th, with Zoom meetings happening about every two weeks and with most activities being done independently on your own timeline. If you are interested in participating, want more information, or have questions, contact Mary-Claire Bernstein, maryclairetb@gmail.com or Kim Rivera, kim.rivera59@gmail.com. This is free but requires registration by September 27th and is open to Tenakee community members.
